

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT TACOMA

BEN SMITH as the Personal Representative for the ESTATE OF MATTHEW S. SMITH; and BEN SMITH and NONA Smith, individually, as the parents of MATTHEW S. SMITH,

Plaintiffs,

v.

PIERCE COUNTY; NAPHCARE, INC.;
TAE KIM, R.N.; and NANDI
BRUMIDGE, N.P.,

Defendants.

CASE NO. C16-5667 BHS

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS

This matter comes before the Court on Defendant Pierce County's (the "County") motion to dismiss (Dkt. 17). The Court has considered the pleadings filed in support of and in opposition to the motion and the remainder of the file and hereby denies the motion for the reasons stated herein.

I. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 29, 2016, the Estate of Matthew S. Smith (the "Estate"), Ben Smith ("Mr. Smith") and Nona Smith ("Mrs. Smith") (collectively "Plaintiffs") filed their complaint.

1 Dkt. 1. On August 29, 2016, the County filed a motion to dismiss. Dkt. 17. On September 2 19, 2016, Plaintiffs responded. Dkt. 18 On September 23, 2016, the County replied. Dkt.
3 19.

4 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

5 On August 27, 2015, Matthew Smith (“Smith”) was arrested and booked into 6 Pierce County Jail. Dkt. 1 at 6. Smith was 47 years old. Id. When Smith was booked into 7 Jail, the County Jail’s medical providers knew Smith suffered from Crohn’s, a potentially 8 dangerous disease. Id. at 7.

9 After his arrival, Smith began to experience symptoms of his disease. Id. As the 10 symptoms worsened, Smith made multiple requests for medical treatment. Id. at 7–8.
11 After approximately four weeks of worsening symptoms, Smith was eventually 12 transported to a hospital for emergency care. Id. Smith was eventually discharged and the 13 County was given instructions that he must have a follow-up appointment with a 14 specialist at the University of Washington. Id. at 9. The County was also instructed that if 15 Smith “was unable to see his doctor [at UW] for any reason or if [he] feel[s] worse in any 16 way prior to [his] follow up appointment, please return to the emergency department.
17 Worsening symptoms include but are not limited to increased pain, fever, or any new or 18 concerning symptom.” Id.

19 After Smith was discharged from the hospital, his symptoms continued to worsen.
20 Id. at 9–10. On October 2, 2015, Smith notified the jail staff that he was suffering from 21 severe dehydration and symptoms of dizziness, aches, and cramps. Id. at 9. On October 3, 22 2015, he complained of severe worsening pain, diarrhea, and vomiting. Id. On October 5,

1 2015, Smith complained of increasingly worse “nausea, vomiting, cramping, abdominal 2 pain, diarrhea, frequent belching, and vomiting more than once each hour.” Id. at 9–10.
3 He reported he had been unable to urinate in 36 hours. Id. at 10. On October 7, 2015, the 4 jail medical staff received lab results indicating that Smith’s health was in a state of 5 emergency. Id. at 10. Despite the repeated indication that Smith’s symptoms were 6 worsening, he was not returned to the hospital emergency room or taken to any other 7 acute care facility. Id. at 9–11.

8 On October 9, 2015, a corrections officer responded to an emergency call light and 9 found Smith lying on his cell floor in severe pain, barely able to walk or stand. Id. at 11.
10 Rather than transport Smith to a hospital, defendants ordered correctional staff to bring 11 him to the jail’s medical clinic in a wheelchair. Id. Smith died on the floor of the jail’s 12 clinic while awaiting medical treatment for over six hours. Id. at 11–12.

13 III. DISCUSSION

14 A. 12(b)(6) Standard

15 Motions to dismiss brought under Rule 12(b)(6) may be based on either the lack of 16 a cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under such a theory.
17 Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990). Material 18 allegations are taken as admitted and the complaint is construed in the plaintiff’s favor.
19 Keniston v. Roberts, 717 F.2d 1295, 1301 (9th Cir. 1983). To survive a motion to dismiss, 20 the complaint does not require detailed factual allegations but must provide the grounds 21 for entitlement to relief and not merely a “formulaic recitation” of the elements of a cause 22

1 of action. Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). A plaintiff must allege 2 “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Id. at 570.

3 “As a general rule, a district court may not consider any material beyond the 4 pleadings in ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.” Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 5 688 (9th Cir. 2001) (internal quotation marks omitted). The Court, however, may 6 consider documents not attached to the complaint “if the documents’ authenticity . . . is 7 not contested and the plaintiff’s complaint necessarily relies on them.” Id. (internal 8 quotation marks omitted). Also, “under Fed. R. Evid. 201, a court may take judicial 9 notice of matters of public record.” Id. at 689 (internal quotation marks omitted).

10 B. Mr. Smith’s Standing on Behalf of Estate as Personal Representative

11 The County appears to argue that Mr. Smith lacks standing to pursue a § 1983 12 claim on behalf of the Estate. State survival statutes will control the survival of § 1983 13 claims so long as the statutes are not “inhospitable to survival of § 1983 actions . . . [and] 14 ha[ve] no adverse effect on the policies underlying § 1983.” Robertson v. Wegmann, 436 15 U.S. 584, 594 (1978). See also Byrd v. Guess, 137 F.3d 1126, 1131 (9th Cir. 1998)
 16 abrogation on other grounds recognized by Moreland v. Las Vegas Metro. Police, 159 17 F.3d 365, 369–70 (9th Cir. 1998) (“[S]urvival actions are permitted under § 1983 if 18 authorized by the applicable state law.”). Under Washington’s general survival statute, 19 “[a]ll causes of action by a person or persons against another person or persons shall 20 survive to the personal representatives of the former and against the personal 21 representatives of the latter.” RCW 4.20.046. Therefore, acting as the personal 22

1 representative, Mr. Smith has standing to pursue any cognizable § 1983 claim on behalf 2 of the Estate.

3       The County nonetheless argues that the Estate’s claim must fail because 4 Washington’s general and special survival statutes require that “parents be dependent for 5 support on a deceased adult child in order to recover.” Dkt. 17 at 10 (quoting Philippides 6 v. Bernard, 151 Wn.2d 376, 388 (2004)). Other courts in this district have rejected this 7 argument. Ostling v. City of Bainbridge Island, 872 F. Supp. 2d 1117, 1124–25 (W.D.
8 Wash. 2012); Harms v. Lockheed Martin Corp., C06-572JLR, 2007 WL 2875024, at *5 9 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 27, 2007). The County’s argument misconstrues the language in RCW 10 4.20.046 that “the personal representative shall only be entitled to recover damages for 11 pain and suffering, anxiety, emotional distress, or humiliation personal to and suffered by 12 a deceased on behalf of” parents and siblings “who may be dependent upon the deceased 13 person for support.” RCW 4.20.046, .020. This language does not deprive a personal 14 representative of standing to bring a claim on behalf of the estate; rather, it limits the 15 availability of non-economic damages for such a claim. Harms, 2007 WL 2875024 at *5.

16       Moreover, this limitation on non-economic damages does not apply in survival § 17 1983 claims. In a well-thought decision from this district, Judge Leighton found that the 18 “policies [underlying § 1983] compel the Court to hold that the restriction of non-19 economic damages in Washington’s survival statute undermines the purpose of § 1983 20 and must therefore be disregarded.” Ostling, 872 F. Supp. 2d at 1126. The Court adopts 21 Judge Leighton’s reasoning in Ostling and finds that Washington’s survival statute can 22 not preclude non-economic damages in a § 1983 claim by a decedent’s estate.

C. Parents' Individual Standing for § 1983 Claims

The County also moves to dismiss Mr. and Mrs. Smith's individual § 1983 claims on the basis that Mr. and Mrs. Smith lack standing. To support its argument, the County cites Byrd for the principle that "survival actions are permitted under § 1983 if authorized by the applicable state law." 137 F.3d at 1131. Under the County's interpretation, this means that surviving parents must possess standing under the state survival and wrongful death statutes in order assert any § 1983 claim associated with the death of a child. However, the language from Byrd upon which the County relies addressed a parent's "standing to assert the violation of [the decedent]'s Fourth Amendment rights." Byrd, 137 F.3d at 1131. This is similarly true of the language upon which the County also relies from Smith v. City of Fontana, 818 F.2d 1411, 1417 (9th Cir. 1987), overruled on other grounds by Hodgers-Durgin v. de la Vina, 199 F.3d 1037 (9th Cir. 1999) ("Mr. Smith's children, suing in their individual capacities, also assert a claim for relief under the Fourth Amendment. However, the Supreme Court has held that 'Fourth Amendment rights are personal rights which . . . may not be vicariously asserted.'" (quoting Alderman v. United States, 394 U.S. 165, 174 (1969))). A complete reading of Byrd indicates that, under § 1983, Fourteenth Amendment claims for parents' individual rights are cognizable and governed by a separate standard than vicarious Fourth Amendment claims that must be brought appropriately by a decedent's estate. See 137 F.3d at 1133–34.

In contrast to the vicarious Fourth Amendment claims addressed by the authority cited above, Mr. and Mrs. Smith allege claims for the deprivation of their own Fourteenth

1 Amendment right to the companionship and society of their son. The Ninth Circuit “has 2 recognized that parents have a Fourteenth Amendment liberty interest in the 3 companionship and society of their children.” Wilkinson v. Torres, 610 F.3d 546, 554 4 (9th Cir. 2010). “Parents and children may assert Fourteenth Amendment substantive due 5 process claims if they are deprived of their liberty interest in the companionship and 6 society of their child or parent through official conduct.” Lemire v. California Dept. of 7 Corrections and Rehabilitation, 726 F.3d 1062, 1075 (9th Cir. 2013). See also Curnow v.
8 Ridgecrest Police, 952 F.2d 321, 325 (9th Cir. 1991) (citing Strandberg v. City of Helena, 9 791 F.2d 744, 748 (9th Cir. 1986); Kelson v. City of Springfield, 767 F.2d 651, 653–55 10 (9th Cir. 1985)); Byrd, 137 F.3d at 1133 (recognizing “the Fourteenth Amendment liberty 11 interests of a mother and wife in the society and companionship of the deceased.”).
12 “[O]nly official conduct that ‘shocks the conscience’ is cognizable as a due process 13 violation.” Porter v. Osborn, 546 F.3d 1131, 1137 (9th Cir. 2008). “A [jail] official’s 14 deliberately indifferent conduct will generally ‘shock the conscience’ so as long as the 15 [jail] official had time to deliberate before acting or failing to act in a deliberately 16 indifferent manner.” Lemire, 726 F.3d at 1075.

17 In its reply, the County argues, in essence, that the prevailing Ninth Circuit 18 precedent is bad law. Dkt. 19 at 4–5. The County indicates that the Supreme Court has 19 remained silent on whether a parent may maintain an individual § 1983 substantive due 20 process claim resulting from the death of an adult nondependent child. Id. Indeed, “the 21 Supreme Court cases [addressing the parental liberty interest] focus on securing the rights 22 of parents to have custody of and to raise their minor children in a manner that develops

1 | parental and filial bonds free from government interference.” Butera v. D.C., 235 F.3d
2 | 637, 655 (D.C. Cir. 2001) (internal quotation omitted). See, e.g., Troxel v. Granville, 530
3 | U.S. 57, 66 (2000) (“[W]e have recognized the fundamental right of parents to make
4 | decisions concerning the care, custody, and control of their children.”). Accordingly, “the 5 | Courts of Appeals are divided on the issue of whether the Due Process Clause protects a
6 | parent’s right to the companionship of his or her adult son.” McCurdy v. Dodd, 352 F.3d
7 | 820, 828 (3d Cir. 2003).

8 |         Examining the Ninth Circuit line of cases, it could be argued that a parent’s right
9 | to sue under § 1983 based on the loss of society and companionship of an adult 10 | nondependent child is an improper exaggeration of the well-established right to direct the 11 | care, custody, and control of dependent children. In Kelson, the Ninth Circuit held that a
12 | fourteen-year-old boy’s suicide while under the supervision of school officials implicated
13 | a § 1983 claim for interference with “a constitutional right to the maintenance of a
14 | parent-child relationship.” 767 F.2d at 654. In reaching its conclusion, the Ninth Circuit
15 | relied on various authorities recognizing a parent’s liberty interest in the care, custody,
16 | and control of minor dependent children. Kelson, 767 F.2d at 653–55 (citing Morrison v.
17 | Jones, 607 F.2d 1269 (9th Cir. 1979), cert. denied, 445 U.S. 962 (1980) (deprivation of 18 | parental rights where state removed mentally-ill, alien, minor child to Germany); Little v.
19 | Streater, 452 U.S. 1 (1981) (holding an indigent defendant in a paternity proceeding
20 | brought by the state has a Fourteenth Amendment due process right to receive blood
21 | grouping tests to establish paternity for newborn child); Lassiter v. Department of Social 22 | Services, 452 U.S. 18 (1981) (holding the parent of a minor is entitled to due process in

1 state initiated proceeding to terminate parental status); Santosky v. Kramer, 455 U.S. 745 2 (1982) (same); Mattis v. Schnarr, 502 F.2d 588 (8th Cir. 1974) (father whose minor son 3 was shot and killed while attempting to escape arrest had § 1983 claim under the due 4 process clause of Fourteenth Amendment) .

5 The Kelson decision also relied on Bell v. City of Milwaukee, 746 F.2d 1205 (7th 6 Cir. 1984), which held that a father could claim a due process deprivation for the death of 7 his nondependent 23-year-old son; but Bell was subsequently overruled. See Russ v.
8 Watts, 414 F.3d 783, 790 (7th Cir. 2005) (“Our finding . . . in Bell was not appropriately 9 moored to Supreme Court precedents establishing the contours of the parental liberty 10 interest. The decisions on which we relied as indicating that [a] father possessed a 11 constitutional liberty interest in his relationship with his [adult] son all dealt with the right 12 to procreate and make decisions about rearing one’s minor children without state 13 inference.”) (quotation marks omitted).

14 Subsequently, in Strandberg, the Ninth Circuit relied on Kelson to bifurcate the 15 parental liberty interest into separate rights to (1) raise minor children and (2) enjoy the 16 companionship and society inherent to a parent-child relationship. 791 F.2d at 748 n.1.
17 Under this approach, the Ninth Circuit found that parents could bring § 1983 claims for 18 Fourteenth Amendment violations based on the death of their 22-year-old son while in 19 jail. Id. at 748. Later, in Curnow, the Ninth Circuit cited Kelson and Strandberg and 20 allowed parents to pursue § 1983 claims based on the Fourteenth Amendment after the 21 fatal shooting of their adult son by police. 952 F.2d at 325. Since Curnow, the Ninth 22 Circuit has consistently recognized that § 1983 claims may proceed under the theory that

1 the Fourteenth Amendment protects the right to the companionship and society between 2 parents and their adult children. Lemire, 726 F.3d at 1075 (citing Wilkinson, Curnow, and 3 Moreland); Wilkinson, 610 F.3d at 554–55 (citing Curnow); Toguchi v. Chung, 391 F.3d 4 1051, 1060 (9th Cir. 2004); Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 685–86 (9th Cir.
5 2001) (citing Kelson); Moreland, 159 F.3d at 371 (citing Curnow); Byrd, 137 F.3d at 6 1134 (citing Curnow); Ward v. City of San Jose, 967 F.2d 280, 283 (9th Cir. 1992).

7 This Court is not the first district court to consider the evolution of the parent-child 8 right to society and companionship in the Ninth Circuit. In Rentz v. Spokane Cty., 438 F.
9 Supp. 2d 1252 (E.D. Wash. 2006), Judge McDonald (who also authored the Curnow 10 opinion while sitting by designation) offered a careful examination of the Ninth Circuit’s 11 Strandberg-Curnow line of cases. There, Judge McDonald allowed the parents’ § 1983 12 claims to proceed, stating: “the development of this precedent in the Ninth Circuit, even 13 be it inadvertent and/or not particularly well thought out under Supreme Court precedent, 14 is nonetheless binding authority upon this district court.” 438 F. Supp. 2d at 1265.

15 Here, the Court reaches the same conclusion. This Court is bound to apply the 16 prevailing law of the Ninth Circuit. See Close v. Pierce Cty., CV-09-05023RBL, 2009 17 WL 3877598, at *4 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 18, 2009) (“This Court cannot and will not 18 overrule Ninth Circuit precedent on this point. The Plaintiffs’ 14th Amendment claim 19 will not be dismissed on the basis that this Circuit should not recognize it.”). Although 20 the Ninth Circuit’s Strandberg-Curnow line of cases arguably overexpanded the parental 21 interest recognized by the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court authority does not 22 necessarily contradict the Ninth Circuit. Therefore, Mr. and Mrs. Smith may bring § 1983

1 substantive due process claims for the loss of society and companionship of their adult 2 nondependent son. They need not show standing under state survival and wrongful death 3 statutes to bring claims for an alleged violation of their own constitutional rights. See 4 Ostling, 872 F. Supp. 2d at 1127.

5 D. Municipal Liability

6 The County also moves to dismiss Plaintiff's § 1983 claims against it on the basis 7 that the allegations in the complaint do not support a theory of municipal liability. Dkt.
8 17 at 4–9.

9 “While local governments may be sued under § 1983, they cannot be held 10 vicariously liable for their employees’ constitutional violations.” Gravelet-Blondin v.
11 Shelton, 728 F.3d 1086, 1096 (9th Cir. 2013). To state a claim against a municipality 12 under § 1983, a plaintiff must allege sufficient facts to support a reasonable inference that 13 the execution of a policy, custom, or practice was the “moving force” that resulted in the 14 deprivation of his constitutional rights. Monell v. Dep’t of Soc. Servs., 436 U.S. 658, 691– 15 92 (1978).

16 There are three established scenarios in which a local government may be liable 17 for constitutional violations under § 1983. “First, a local government may be held liable 18 ‘when implementation of its official policies or established customs inflicts the 19 constitutional injury.’” Clouthier v. County of Contra Costa, 591 F.3d 1232, 1249 (9th 20 Cir. 2012) (quoting Monell, 436 U.S. at 708). Second, Plaintiff can prevail on a § 1983 21 claim against the County by identifying acts of omission, such as a pervasive failure to 22 train its employees, “when such omissions amount to the local government’s own official

1 policy.” Id. Finally, the County “may be held liable under § 1983 when ‘the individual 2 who committed the constitutional tort was an official with final policy-making authority’ 3 or such an official ‘ratified a subordinate’s unconstitutional decision or action and the 4 basis for it.’” Clouthier, 591 F.3d at 1250 (quoting Gillette v. Delmore, 979 F.2d 1342, 5 1346–47 (9th Cir. 1992) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)).

6 “A ‘policy or custom’ must generally be one adopted and expressly set forth, but a 7 municipal policy ‘may [also] be inferred from widespread practices or evidence of 8 repeated constitutional violations for which the errant municipal officers were not 9 discharged or reprimanded.’” Morales v. Fry, C12-2235-JCC, 2014 WL 1230344, at *13 10 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 25, 2014) (quoting Nadell v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t., 268 F.3d 11 924, 929 (9th Cir. 2001)). At the pleading stage, Plaintiff must plead “sufficient 12 allegations of underlying facts to give fair notice and to enable the opposing party to 13 defend itself” and “factual allegations that . . . plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief . .
14 . .” See AE ex rel. Hernandez v. Cty. of Tulare, 666 F.3d 631, 637 (9th Cir. 2012). See 15 also Cyr v. Pierce Cty., C16-0430 RSM, 2016 WL 2855272, at *7 (W.D. Wash. May 16, 16 2016) (citing AE ex rel. Hernandez, 666 F.3d at 637; Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1216 17 (9th Cir. 2011)).

18 To allege § 1983 municipal liability on a theory of failure to train, Plaintiff must 19 allege: (1) the existing training program is inadequate in relation to the tasks the 20 particular officers must perform; (2) the failure to train amounts to deliberate indifference 21 to the rights of persons with whom the police come into contact; and (3) the inadequacy 22 of the training actually caused the deprivation of the alleged constitutional right. Merritt

1 v. Cty. of Los Angeles, 875 F.2d 765, 770 (9th Cir. 1989). “A municipality’s culpability 2 for a deprivation of rights is at its most tenuous where a claim turns on a failure to train.”
 3 Connick v. Thompson, 563 U.S. 51, 61 (2011). “[T]he need for more or different training 4 [must be] so obvious, and the inadequacy so likely to result in the violation of 5 constitutional rights, that policymakers . . . can reasonably be said to have been 6 deliberately indifferent to the need.” City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 380 (1989).
 7 “Under this standard, [Plaintiffs] must allege facts to show that the [Defendants] 8 disregarded the known or obvious consequence that a particular omission in their 9 training program would cause [municipal] employees to violate citizens’ constitutional 10 rights.” Flores v. Cty. of Los Angeles, 758 F.3d 1154, 1159 (9th Cir. 2014) (emphasis 11 added) (quotation marks omitted). See also McFarland v. City of Clovis, 163 F. Supp. 3d 12 798, 806 (E.D. Cal. 2016) (“Alleging that training [for arrest procedures] is ‘deficient’ or 13 ‘inadequate’ without identifying a specific inadequacy is conclusory and does not support 14 a plausible claim.”) (citing Young v. City of Visalia, 687 F. Supp. 2d 1141, 1149 (E.D.
 15 Cal. 2009)). “Absent allegations of specific shortcomings in the training . . . or facts that 16 might place the City on notice that constitutional deprivations were likely to occur, 17 Plaintiff [cannot] adequately [plead] a § 1983 claim . . . for failure to train.” Bini v. City 18 of Vancouver, C16-5460 BHS, 2016 WL 6395297, at *4 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 28, 2016).

19 A theory of “[r]atification . . . generally requires more than acquiescence.” 20 Sheehan v. City & Cty. of San Francisco, 743 F.3d 1211, 1231 (9th Cir. 2014), rev’d in 21 part on other grounds sub nom. City & Cty. of San Francisco, Calif. v. Sheehan, 135 S.
 22 Ct. 1765 (2015). “Rather, to state a section 1983 claim under a ratification theory, a

1 plaintiff must sufficiently allege that a policymaker ‘made a deliberate choice to endorse’
2 the . . . unlawful actions.” Diamond v. United States, ED CV 14-01922-VBF, 2015 WL 3 11215851, at *9 (C.D. Cal. May 15, 2015) (quoting Sheehan, 743 F.3d at 1231). “When a 4 county continues to turn a blind eye to severe violations of inmates’ constitutional 5 rights—despite having received notice of such violations—a rational fact finder may 6 properly infer the existence of a previous policy or custom of deliberate indifference.” 7 Henry v. Cty. of Shasta, 132 F.3d 512, 518 (9th Cir. 1997), as amended on denial of 8 reh’g, 137 F.3d 1372 (9th Cir. 1998).

9       The County correctly asserts that Plaintiffs fail to adequately plead a § 1983 10 municipal liability claim under a theory of ratification. Plaintiffs do not plead that the 11 employees were not disciplined or that the County has deliberately endorsed the alleged 12 wrongdoings. Nonetheless, Plaintiffs do adequately allege that the County “maintained 13 unconstitutional policies, procedures and customs with regard to not following hospital 14 discharge instructions on the subject of taking detainees to a hospital or acute care facility 15 when symptoms increase, worsen or recur.” Dkt. 1 at 12–14. They also adequately allege 16 that such customs include a failure to “provide training on managing individuals who are 17 suffering the kinds of severe and ongoing symptoms that Smith suffered from, such as 18 diarrhea, dehydration, kidney failure and associated conditions as well as following 19 hospital discharge instructions on the subject of taking detainees to a hospital or acute 20 care facility . . . .” Id.

21       These allegations, on their own, could be considered conclusory and insufficient.
22 However, they are coupled with factual allegations indicating repeated failures to 1 adequately address Smith's multiple requests for medical attention or transport him to an 2 acute care facility in accordance with his hospital discharge instructions. Specifically, 3 Plaintiffs allege that specific agents of the County inadequately responded to three of 4 Smith's urgent requests for medical aid on October 2, 3, and 5, 2015. Dkt. 1 at 9–10.

5 They allege that specific County agents failed to respond to lab results showing a clear 6 medical emergency, obtained on October 7, 2015. Dkt. 1 at 10. Plaintiffs further allege 7 that on October 9, 2015, when Plaintiff was found on his cell floor dying, defendants still 8 refused to transport him to a hospital or acute care facility. Dkt. 1 at 11. Plaintiffs allege 9 that all these failures were in direct contravention of hospital discharge orders issued to 10 the County. Dkt. 1 at 8–9, 11. Finally, Plaintiffs allege that Smith died on the floor of the 11 jail's medical clinic while awaiting medical treatment for over six hours. Dkt. 1 at 11–12.

12       The facts alleged in Plaintiff's complaint, coupled with the alleged policy and 13 training deficiencies, adequately "specify the content of the policies, customs, or 14 practices the execution of which gave rise to Plaintiffs' constitutional injuries." Mateos- 15 Sandoval v. Cty. of Sonoma, 942 F. Supp. 2d 890, 899 (N.D. Cal. 2013), aff'd sub nom.
16 Sandoval v. Cty. of Sonoma, 591 Fed. Appx. 638 (9th Cir. 2015), opinion amended and 17 superseded on denial of reh'g and aff'd, 599 Fed. Appx. 673 (9th Cir. 2015).

18       Ultimately, Plaintiffs will be required to prove that Smith's alleged harm was 19 more than a sporadic incident involving the wrongful actions of a rogue employee. See 20 Case v. Kitsap Cty. Sheriff's Dep't, 249 F.3d 921, 932 (9th Cir. 2001) ("[N]or can 21 [municipal] liability be predicated on the isolated sporadic events . . . ."); Booke v. Cty. of 22 Fresno, 98 F. Supp. 3d 1103, 1128 (E.D. Cal. 2015) ("[A] plaintiff generally must show

1 other instances of peace officers violating constitutional rights in order to show 2 deliberately indifferent training.”) However, Plaintiffs have adequately alleged facts to 3 support a plausible theory of municipal liability under § 1983.

4 IV. ORDER

5 Therefore, it is hereby ORDERED that the County’s motion to dismiss (Dkt. 17) 6 is DENIED.
